

Talk: Performing Cancer Cultures Activating Health Justice

Wednesday November 9, 2:00 - 3:30 pm CIS
#3020, USF-Tampa

Presented by the Department of Communication in collaboration with the Judy Genshaft Honors College and USF Humanities Institute:

“Performing Cancer Cultures, Activating Health Justice”

Facilitated by Marie Garlock, Ph.D. and respondent: Ulluminair Salim, Ph.D.

The Talk will explore why cancer stories matter, and how they shape cultures of healthcare, environmental, and economic action? Cancer narratives are often treated as currency for fundraising campaigns, or as anecdotes of bad luck, separate from the environments and inequities from which they arise.

With community-based partnerships, personal and professional experience in health communication, Dr. Garlock engages advanced cancer experiences through performance research that spans creative workshops in clinical settings, narrative testimony for civil rights and policy advocacy, and artistic translation of oral histories with patients, family, caregivers, and healthcare providers.

The talk will also preview the Flipping Cancer performance on Thursday November 10, at 2PM which all are welcome.

Click this link to stream the event on MS Teams!

CIS-3020 "Performance Lab" is located on the 3rd floor of the Zimmerman building i.e., Communication & Information Sciences building.*

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATION

Office: CIS#3058 | 813-974-2145

